

Insurance Defense

Clark Hill has defended hundreds of insurance cases. Our attorneys regularly undertake the defense of general liability, premises liability, and product liability matters, as well as cases involving environment and personal liens, including homeowners claims and automobile negligence claims (including no-fault, first and third party claims).

We also serve as defense counsel on directors and officers liability claims, professional malpractice claims (including medical, legal, accounting, engineering, and architectural claims) and policy defense claims of all types.

In addition to defending insurance claims in state and federal courts, we have extensive experience in alternative dispute resolution, including facilitation, mediation, arbitration, and summary jury trials.
